Don’t Just Break Away. Break Through.

YOUR GUIDE TO INDEPENDENCE
Today, a record number of financial advisors are breaking away from wirehouses and choosing independence as an RIA — from starting their own firms to joining an existing firm or something in between.

Transitioning a financial advisory practice is not without its challenges, so why are so many advisors choosing the RIA business model?

Should you make the switch?

And how can BNY Mellon | Pershing help?

+27% YEAR-OVER-YEAR INCREASE

IN NUMBER OF BREAKAWAY ADVISORS SINCE 2017

537 ADVISORS IN 2018 VS. 400 WHO BROKE AWAY FROM WIREHOUSES LAST YEAR

“The only question we ask ourselves now is, why didn’t we do this sooner?”

— JACK PETERSEN, SUMMIT TRAIL ADVISORS

RIA + CUSTODIAN

* A partnership for independence

TRENDING UP

The number of RIAs has grown significantly in recent years, and that number is expected to keep growing.

- 46,820 Wirehouse (0.4%)
- 59,361 IBD (1.0%)
- 27,418 Hybrid RIA (1.0%)
- 35,784 Independent RIA (4.8%)

- $7,189.5 Wirehouse (11.2%)
- $2,778.6 IBD (13.5%)
- $1,749.0 Hybrid RIA (13.9%)
- $2,991.4 Independent RIA (20.4%)

= Year-Over-Year Growth Rate (2016-2017)

Is now the time to make the switch?

Before deciding on independence, consider this — regardless of the independent business model that’s right for you, becoming an RIA has the potential to give you more control over your practice and to enhance your value to your clients.

AS AN RIA YOU CAN ALSO:

- Build equity
- Take greater control of revenue and expenses
- Offer your clients greater flexibility in investment choices
- Make decisions over staffing and compensation
- Enhance your value to clients as a fiduciary
