- Destination RIA: What to Expect and How to Prepare for Independence This paper lays out the most recent trends that are defining the Independent RIA space and illuminates key factors that any individual or team should consider while making this career-defining decision. We share the stories of three RIA teams who found success using this path, while identifying best practices that helped facilitate their transition processes.

- The Parent Trap: Avoiding Common Multigenerational Wealth Planning Pitfalls Advisors are in a prime position to play a central role in generational wealth management for high-net-worth clients and families, but awareness of the potential pitfalls is key. This paper discusses these pitfalls to help advisors better identify and prevent them.

- Internet of Things (IoT) for Wealth Technology is connecting multiple, once-disparate devices in the home and office. This paper outlines that it's not “if,” but when IoT adoption will occur on a large scale in wealth management services, and whether financial professionals can and will incorporate its best practices in keeping with investor wants, needs and increasing demands.

- Have It Your Way: Why Tech Integration Is Critical to an Optimal Advisor Experience Disparate systems that don’t communicate do little for advisor productivity. This leads to inefficiencies and missed opportunities. This paper outlines how recent (and major) advances in technology integration solve this—meaning faster firm growth, better efficiencies and lower costs, while creating the experience advisors want.
